ATF REWARD OFFERED TO SOLVE MURDER CASE INVOLVING INFANT

PSN TIDE Task Force Assists Detroit Police with Homicide

DETROIT – Special Agent in Charge Valerie J. Goddard of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) and Detroit Police Chief Ella Bully-Cummings announced today a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person(s) responsible in the shooting death of one-year-old Keith Wallace at a home located on the 1700 block of Calvert in Detroit on Sunday, June 24.

Tipsters are urged to call 1-800-ATF-GUNS (1-800-283-4867).

“The indiscriminant violence is believed to be the result of armed drug dealers,” Goddard said. “We are actively assisting in the Detroit Police homicide investigation and are offering a $5,000 reward. It’s our top priority and we need someone who has the courage to come forward. The public should know that through Operation TIDE, every agency at the federal and state level is involved in assisting the Detroit Police Department to find this child killer and bring them to justice.”

“The cash reward being offered by the ATF exemplifies their dedication to working with local law enforcement to address crime issues in our communities. Apprehending those responsible for this unconscionable crime is most important because it prevents further victims by these individuals. It also allows the family of the child to begin their long journey of healing,” said Chief Bully-Cummings.
